About Giga

Giga, a joint initiative between UNICEF and ITU, aims to connect every school in the world to the internet, addressing the global digital divide. The lack of internet access deprives half of the world's population, including millions of children, of digital skills and opportunities. Giga uses schools as anchor points to extend connectivity to surrounding communities, promoting economic growth and sustainability. Mapping school connectivity levels using machine learning and satellite images is the first step in identifying areas in need. So far, over 2.1 million schools in 136 countries have been mapped. The cost of connecting every school is estimated over $400 billion, and Giga works with governments and private investors to secure funding.

By partnering with various stakeholders, Giga facilitates internet access, implements competitive procurement processes, and develops real-time payment mechanisms. The initiative has already connected schools in 19 countries, including remote regions and refugee camps. Giga's work supports UNICEF's Reimagine Education initiative, which aims to connect every child and young person to digital learning solutions by 2030. Through collaborations with financial and technical partners, Giga advances its mission. You can read more about Giga's work at <https://giga.global/> and by following us on twitter @Gigaglobal.
